Quality and craftsmanship since 1853

The picturesque Hamont in Limburg, Belgium is our hometown. Recently, our close-knit team proudly celebrated the company's 170th anniversary. Spaas started as pioneer in the wax bleaching industry for monasteries and abbeys that made candles. The second generation specialised itself in hand-rolled church candles. The third focused on domestic use with functional emergency candles. Over time, more and more value for money lifestyle products followed.

> We offer beautiful shapes, charming colours and delightful scents, but it's all about the power of little flames that give real connection.

Sarah Spaas, Sales Manager

Innovation, steady growth and automation paved the way for the prominent place today in the European candle market. Ben and Sarah Spaas are the proud shareholders who can rely on 350 dedicated employees in Belgium and Poland. Even the young sixt generation is already inspired by the precious heritage and unstoppable creativity. Family is an integral part of the DNA of Spaas. This is reflected in loyal partnerships in more than 40 countries. Stimulating more connection between people is the sincere mission of our authentic brand.

BELGIAN QUALITY

SINCE 1853

Sustainability as strategic anchor

At Spaas we strongly believe that the pursuit of quality, sustainability and corporate social responsibility is a sustained effort by an entire team. With our in-depth sustainability report we practice what we preach: producing with more natural materials, less plastic, smarter packaging, solar energy, conscious water use and well-thought-out transport.

> Sustainability and growth can indeed go hand-in-hand.

Ben Spaas, CEO

We established a roadmap with short-, medium- and long-term goals. The EcoVadis Platinum certification is already a great step in our non-stop process of improvement.
A worthful recognition of the achievements in four crucial areas: environment, labour and human rights, ethics and sustainable procurement.
